Liquor Destroyed By Court Order

Judge Fowler Grants Motion of District Attorney Traver to Destroy Liquor Seized in This City and County Under Mullan-Gage Law.

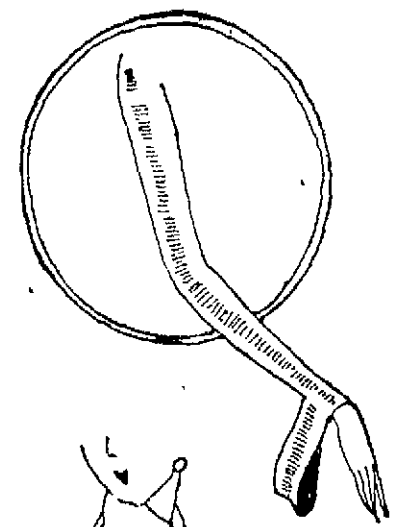

At the recent term of county court a motion was made by District Attorney Frederick G. Traver for an order to destroy the liquors seized in this city and county, which were placed in charge of the sheriff and chief of police. The parties from whom the liquors were seized were notified if they had a claim upon same to present it. John Zellman of Saugerties was the only one who put in a claim of ownership. County Judge Fowler has made an order that the liquors seized before the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law in the following cases be forfeited to the state of New York and that said liquors and the parcels in which the same are contained be, by the sheriff of the county of Ulster, forthwith destroyed:

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Sleeves are going through a transitory period; they are as inclined to extremes as ever, but uncertain as to which extreme dominates. The long, fitted sleeve has many sponsors, yet even in this variety there is tendency to do the unexpected at the wrist, a widening out being then indulged in.

The mousquetaire sleeve has even appeared this year—and in a wedding gown, the sleeve being tulle, the dress satin. This type is not, however, general at the moment, though one feels that anything may happen just now—in sleeves.

The details sketched were noted in several French frocks, the full sleeve, especially the peasant one, being often used where soft materials are the choice, and that is nearly always.

The high collar has caused a furor this fall, but it proves not as formidable as it sounds. This one-sided treatment is among the novel ones espoused. The same collar, fastened front instead of side, is usual enough, but turning it about this way lifts it out of the accustomed path and does away with the necessity of a tie. The choker, which has a bow at the side, is highly prized, many separate neckpieces finishing that way.

The New Simplicity

After Fashion's bizarre orgy of the past two seasons the reaction has at last set in, and there is a reversion once more to simple lines in dress and footwear. This tasteful ensemble, for instance, illustrates some of the best points in the new fall and winter predictions. The gown is of heavy black satin hanging straight from the shoulders with a touch of cream colored lace at the neck and a few buttons on the sleeves. The modish pumps of black kid void of the intricate cut work of last summer's footwear have as their sole ornamentation the small pointed tongue with a bit of stitching on it. Sheer hose in the new gun-metal shade are worn with them.

WURTSBORO ROAD WORK.

Realization of Hope Deferred Causes Change of Heart Feeling.

A walk over the new Ellenville-Wurtsboro road recently, as far as the new bridge on the Schultz flats, disclosed two facts, says the Ellenville Journal—one that there would appear to be hope that ultimately this wonderfully long-drawn-out piece of highway construction will be finished; the other that the new piece of road, running from the Leurenthill school house along the heights to Ellenville will be when completed the finest piece of scenic highway in this part of the country. The change of location gives a practically level stretch of road and the view across the valley, with the mountains in the comparatively near distance, is very fine. We predict that this route, when opened to the great motoring public, will be a scene of pleasure traffic such as few of our people imagine. It will pay the people of Ellenville and this section to wake up to the opportunity that is ahead of them. While the past history of this road work does not encourage prophesy, we see no reason why, with ordinarily favorable weather, the road should not be completed at least to where the old road joins it at the school house, perhaps a mile south of Ellenville, before winter, which would do away with further real difficulties of travel as far as the trip from Ellenville to Wurtsboro is concerned.

INNESS'S NEW CANVAS.

Noted Artist Completes His Latest Masterpiece—"The Only Hope."

We note that the large picture on which George Inness, Jr., of Cragmoor has been working for some time past, is completed and will be exhibited throughout the country, says the Ellenville Journal. The title of the picture is "The Only Hope," and its aim is to express the idea that world peace must come through love and by the banishment of thoughts that give rise to hatred, jealousy and avarice.

A lecture entitled "Peace" will be given as the picture is exhibited. Those who have seen the canvas, which is a very large one, say it is a wonderful picture, one of the best Mr. Inness has produced—if not his masterpiece.

Novelty Features Late Paris Gowns

Many Interesting Touches
Brought Out by Prominent Designers.

Premet's winter collection shows great cleverness and ingenuity in introducing touches of novelty into gowns that retain all the well-known traditions of this house, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. There are jokes to the base of the shoulder line on most of the dresses. The center-back is defined by a seam, a plait, a strap, and often fullness is given by a group of inverted knife-plaits at the foot, both center-back and front. The waistline is slightly higher, but this is arranged in such a subtle manner as to be scarcely perceptible, for the beltless fashion still remains a feature of this house. There is a slight fitting at the normal waistline in some instances. In others the buttons of a double-breasted coat are placed higher than they would have been last year. A touch of embroidery or a ribbon cravat is brought through a slot in the dress at a higher level than in the last collection.

The blouses worn with three-piece suits are as long as the coats and often quite straight. They are generally of georgette crepe, which may be plaited or embroidered.

Plaid is much used in this collection and so is a fine silk faille called grain de poudre which resembles ottoman. There is a material that looks like interwoven bands, nearly

Relationship Between Color and Your Income

When you make your decision upon what is "your color," observes a writer in the Kansas City Star, undoubtedly you consider your eyes, your hair, your skin, and perhaps even the psychological effects the color has on your moods. But do you consider your income?

If you do not, not only are you likely to have a depleted bank balance and a worried expression, but the very colors you choose as "yours" are likely, by some malicious magic, to become both unsuitable and unbecoming. Suppose, for instance, it is some bright shade which you have selected as pre-eminent suited to your looks and personality. Now, if your income is such that you cannot afford plenty of other and milder-colored clothes, to offset the ones of the favored "loud" color, your friends are going to tire of that color quickly; and the chances are that, after a time, you will even cease to appear attractive in it—at least to those who see you wear it daily.

Prominent stripes, plaids and checks come in the same class of conspicuous clothing as do striking colors. You can appear attractive season after season in a conservatively-toned gown, say of blue, black, brown or dark green, where you would soon become a tiring object to the eye if you appeared throughout a single season in a bright red, or brilliant green checkered sports suit.

Again, the color considerations of the women whose income is limited should concern lightness, as well as brightness, of shade. It is obvious that, since light clothing appears soiled much more quickly than dark clothing does, too much of it in the wardrobe of the average woman is an unwarranted expense, as it entails constant cleaner's bills.

Only if you have enough money to keep light, easily soiled clothes continually at the cleaner's, and to discard clothes of which you or your friends have become tired, you can disregard the otherwise important relationship between color and your income.

Evening Coats Promise to Be Favorite Style

Evening coats will be more popular than capes, according to a prominent fashion writer. Gold metal embroidery trims many of these. Sometimes the sleeves are embroidered, the rest of the wrap remaining plain.

Many of the suit-coats, which extend within ten inches of the hem of the frock, have three rows of fur banding placed at intervals about the bottom of the coat. Sleeves of the coats are generally rather snug-fitting from shoulder to wrist, and are finished with four or five-inch cuffs of fur. Upstanding collars of fur will be popular.

Where fur forms the hem-border on the slender frock, the accompanying coat extends just above the fur. Collar and cuffs of the coat match the fur used on the frock.

Gifts for the Bride

The girl who contemplates being married, and is busy with her trousseau, will be interested in the linen strips that are meant to hold one's linens in neat piles. These strips tie with tapes and are cross-stitched with floral designs and the name of the article they are meant to hold, such as "towels," "pillow cases" and "sheets."

Worn in New Manner

A number of smart women, wearing of the multiplicity of glass bangles, now have adopted the two-bracelet idea. The two bracelets match, and one is worn above the left elbow, the other on the left wrist.

Week's Activities At the Y. W. C. A.

Various Classes and Departments
Will Have Busy Time—Hallowe'en
Party to Be Gay Affair With Fancy Costumes.

The schedule of activities at the Y. W. C. A. will be somewhat different this week owing to the special Hallowe'en festivities. The various groups of grade school Girl Reserves that meet each afternoon at the association building will not hold their regular meetings this week but will have a joint party on Wednesday from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m. All grade school girls of twelve years of age or over are cordially invited to attend this Hallowe'en party. A most attractive program is being planned by the clubs.

The senior department party will be held on Friday evening at eight o'clock with Miss Ruth Smith in charge of the affair. Senior members and their friends are invited to attend. At both parties it is expected that many of the girls will come in fancy costumes.

All classes will meet as usual this week and the attention of those interested in the bowling is especially called to the fact that on Tuesday evening a 7:30 at the Y. M. C. A. alleys, a special meeting will be called to plan for a bowling tournament. The swimming classes are held each Tuesday evening with very excellent attendance.

The Wednesday night supper will be omitted this week in order to give the younger girls the hall for their party.

The first regular rehearsal of the Schubert Choral Club will be held on Friday evening from seven until eight o'clock, the time being shortened this week because of the senior Hallowe'en party. Miss Los Kamp will meet those new members whose voices are to be tried at 6:45 p. m.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

FIRST FEMINE JOURNALIST.

Elizabeth Mallet was the founder of the London Daily Courant, the first number of which was issued March 11, 1691. This was the world's first real daily newspaper. Before Miss Mallet's venture a daily market report had been issued for some time in Germany, and a daily royal bulletin had been posted on the walls of the palace in China, but neither of these could properly be called newspapers. A personal of the premier copy of the pioneer newspaper, the property of the British Museum reveals the fact that Miss Mallet was a staunch advocate of "Women's Rights." The Courant had no "sex" nor editorials. Miss Mallet remarking that "The editor will not take it upon herself to give any comments or conjectures of her own, but will relate only matters of fact, supposing other people to have sense enough to make reflections for themselves."

THE N. Y. SUBWAY.

The first subway line in America, that in New York, was opened to the public nineteen years ago today, when special trains carrying the mayor and other officials traveled over the line of the new underground. The New York subway was not an innovation, however, for "tubes" were in operation in London long before the first American line was constructed. The first New York subway constituted but a fraction of the great system now in operation, and the vast extensions contemplated. The first subway line connecting Manhattan and Brooklyn, built under the East River, was opened in 1908. Boston, Philadelphia, Buenos Aires and other cities have since found the subway a solution for transportation problems. During the first year the record number of passengers carried for one day on subway trains was 360,000—a mere "drop in the bucket" as compared with the daily traffic today.

CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD.

Michael Servetus, the physiologist who discovered the circulation of the blood, was burned to death as a heretic just 371 years ago today, October 27, 1553. He was a successful physician, but by dabbling in theology as well as medicine he aroused the ire of the theologians, particularly in his denial of the Trinity.

While escaping to Italy he was captured at Geneva, "for the glory of God." The epochal discovery of Servetus was for a time denied, but 75 years after the death of the Spanish scientist, William Harvey, an English physician, made public those complete views of the circulation of

YALE GRADUATE FOUND DEAD, CHAINED TO TREE.

HENRY H. McHENRY

Henry H. McHenry, member of a prominent Ardmore, Pa., family, Yale graduate and World War hero, was found dead, evidently from starvation, with one end of a 150-foot chain padlocked around his neck and the other end made fast to a big tree, in a wild section of the Green Mountains, near Williamsport, Pa. His father, a former vice-president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, declared his son had threatened to commit suicide in that strange manner. Young McHenry disappeared from home August 1. The ground around the tree to which he was chained was worn bare where he had paced around and around, unable to free himself.

LAW AND LIBERTY.

The whole body of Pennsylvania legislation does not exceed 4,723 statutes and the last legislature passed only 451 acts. "So that our children," writes William P. Guest of Philadelphia in the October Atlantic Monthly, "by reading, say, one act a day (omitting Saturdays and Sundays and a moderate vacation) can keep abreast of current legislation, and by reading four additional or a total of only five a day, can readily catch up with the past statutory law of the province and state in about 42 years, when they will be properly prepared for a review of Federal legislation." This would seem to be a sufficiently generous statutory diet for the youthful Pennsylvanian, but Mr. Guest seems almost clamorously urgent for more, and appears to think that the thousand and one new propositions of the industrious uplifiers should receive grave consideration and be promptly adopted.

One of these that particularly intrigues his fancy is the prohibition of tobacco, which would involve merely a return to those halcyon days when, by the act of October, 1701, any person who disgraced Philadelphia by smoking in its streets, either by day or night, was made to forfeit twelve pence for every such offense—a trifling punishment indeed in view of the heinousness of the crime. Mr. Guest forcibly argues that "the habit of drinking, however loathsome to the drinker, is not so offensive as that of smoking to his fellows, whom it is the function of government to protect," and indignantly asks: "What right has the smoker to discharge his by-product in my face? Why should I be drugged against my will, lose my sleep because another smokes? If the particles of smoke were larger, like stones, it would surely be assault and battery; but the size is merely a question of degree and not of principle. No one nowadays, throws whisky at me in the street."

Mr. Guest is equally emphatic and entertaining on the subject of many other proposed reforms. The innumerable uplift groups engage his admiring and sympathetic attention; he even declares that the salvation of democracy is in their hands. "The spirit of the time," he says, "admonishes us to abandon the attempt to improve our own lives—and irksome task carrying no salary—and to give ourselves wholeheartedly to the improvement of others, being conscious that our outlook is broader and nobler than theirs." He thinks, however, that in the pursuit and regulation of our neighbors we could learn something from the country's earlier statutes that unfortunately have become obsolete. He refers incidentally, but with awe, to a Colonial law requiring that "every male citizen of age should attend church, fully armed." One of the modern propositions that particularly impresses him is the sterilization of criminals, for "once adopted the principle is capable of extension to even more necessary fields; we all know that it is not criminal people that annoy us so much as disagreeable people."

But the discerning reader of Mr. Guest's "Point of Liberty" will soon suspect that he is a bit cynical and, before the end of the article is reached, will more than likely conclude that the whole of it is "writ sarkas-ic."

LAFOLETTE'S OLD GAME.

In his recent speech at St. Louis to an audience composed largely of persons of Teutonic extraction, Senator LaFollette submitted a long list of blessings that would have been ours if our Government had heeded his advice and kept this country out of the World War. He said, for example, that sixty thousand young men now dead would be alive; that we should not be called on to care for hundreds of thousands of disabled veterans; that we should not have been heavily taxed to pay the war's costs, etc., etc.

What Senator LaFollette discreetly left unmentioned was the probable consequence if his advice had been taken and we had kept out of the war—that Germany would have triumphed and ruled Europe with the mailed fist, that ultimately we should have had to fight that insolent and predatory power alone, that incalculable costs in blood and treasure, with withering taxation to follow, would have been necessary to prevent the "War Lord" from making good his promise to return to Mexico her "lost provinces" (half a dozen of our great Western States) in reward for her military aid.

HUNGRY TISSUES.

Since the success of Dr. Banting in the treatment of diabetes with insulin, research men are working night and day studying the chemical contents of the blood.

The various glands and their secretions are being put to tests of all kinds. The effect of the thyroid secretion upon the blood, and then the counter effect as it were, of the little adrenal glands which lie on the top of the kidneys, are being watched most carefully.

The first thing that Dr. Banting and his assistant, Dr. Best, noticed, was that the sugar in the blood was considerably less, after the injection of insulin.

After experiments upon animals Dr. Best injected some insulin into Dr. Banting, because the latter felt that if there were any danger to human life, he as the originator should be the one to suffer, and no one else. Accordingly Dr. Banting's blood was examined before the injection and afterwards, and as in the case with the animals, his blood was found to contain less sugar.

Now where had the sugar gone?

It was still in the body all right, but it was not in the blood.

Investigation showed that the tissues of the body in diabetic patients did not possess sufficient sugar. These tissues were actually starving for sugar, and yet were unable to take it from the blood as it passed through them.

However, when insulin was taken into the system, the tissues of the body were given the power to absorb sugar from the blood as it passed through them. This built up the tissues and prevented that loss of weight or starvation which formerly caused the death of diabetic patients.

The insulin is just the extra quantity of a secretion that diabetic patients needed, but were unable to manufacture for themselves.

It seems simple enough now, but these two young men worked hard and faithfully before they succeeded. Their success has stimulated work of a similar kind, all over the civilized world.

"Are you the Widow Malone, huh?" he asked.

"And I am not," she answered. "Tim Mrs. Malone, but not widow."

Ancient Juniper Tree

What is believed to be the oldest juniper tree in the world is now being protected by the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, according to word received from the Cache National forest in northern Utah. A careful examination of the tree by scientists from the Utah Agricultural college and by Forest Supervisor Carl B. Arentson shows the age of the tree to be not less than 3,000 years, thus placing this tree on a par with some of the big redwood trees in California which have so often been spoken of as the "oldest living things on earth."

Conservation Commission's Game Protectors Stop Pollution of Many Trout Brooks—Plant Owners Co-operate.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 27.—Game protectors acting under orders from the conservation commission have cleaned up an unusually large number of cases of stream pollution where sawdust from sawmills and wastes from milk stations and acid factories were killing the fish and ruining fishing.

The conservation law prohibits the discharge of dye stuffs, coal tar, refuse from a gas house, cheese factory, creamery, condenser or canning factory, sawdust, shavings, tanbark, lime or other deleterious or poisonous substances into waters in quantities injurious to fish life inhabiting the same.

Obstacles in the way of disposing of these waste materials other than by dumping them into the streams have been very difficult to overcome, even where the owners of the offending industries have been willing to comply with the law.

Various plans have been devised for disposing of these wastes so that they will not get into the streams. In many of the cases recently cleared up, creameries are now keeping their skim milk out of the streams by disposing of it to neighboring farmers and other wastes are taken care of in septic tanks or by piping it to points where it cannot get into the streams.

One particularly troublesome case that has finally been settled satisfactorily is reported by Inspector DeSilva, whose district comprises the counties of Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Sullivan and Ulster. It was that of an acid factory that had been polluting a trout stream very badly for two miles. The owners of the factory had been fined several times but the pollution continued.

Inspector DeSilva went early in the morning to a point on the stream below the factory and made a minnow test to determine the degree of pollution. Less than an hour sufficed to kill the minnows and proved that the pollution was fatal to fish life. The inspector called upon the president of the company, reported the results of the investigation and stated that he was not seeking a settlement but would lay the matter before the conservation officials for such an adjustment as would definitely end the pollution of the stream.

The president informed the inspector that he was a sportsman himself and wished to stop the pollution and would start at once and lay a pipe to conduct the waste matter to a safe distance from the stream. He also paid $150 for the last pollution.

In Inspector Johnston's district comprising the counties of Albany, Rensselaer, Columbia, Greene and Schoenectady five valuable trout streams that were being polluted have been cleared and are now free from pollution. Porters Corners stream, Mosherkill, Kayaderoseras Creek, East Galway Creek and Claverack Creek. Porters Corners stream was being polluted by sawdust from sawmills, the proprietors of which have changed the disposal of the sawdust so that no more enters the stream.

Similar conditions prevailed on East Galway Creek and they were corrected by changing the disposal of the sawdust. Pollution of the Manokill by creamery refuse will be prevented in the future by the putting in of septic tanks. At several creameries which have heretofore been the source of complaint of pollution, skim milk formerly discharged into the streams is being drawn away by farmers. Several cases of alleged pollution in Inspector Johnston's division were investigated and the water in the streams tested where no pollution was shown.

In Inspector Gammon's division which includes the counties of Jefferson, Lewis and St. Lawrence, a number of cases of stream pollution have been satisfactorily cleared up by the proprietors of the industries responsible for the pollution installing septic tanks. At the present time with the exception of a few cases in which legal action is pending, the pollution situation is well taken care of.

In Inspector Hamilton's division including the counties of Allegany, Livingston, Monroe, Ontario, Seneca, Steuben, Wayne and Yates, in practically every case where the tests have shown dangerous pollution of the streams, the owners of the plants responsible therefore have declared their willingness to cooperate with the authorities and take precautions to prevent their detrimental effluent from entering the streams until it has been properly treated.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FAIRYLAND BALL

The Queen of the Fairies had not given a ball in a long, long time and she thought it would be fine to have one in honor of the beautiful foliage. She loved the bright yellows and russets and reds and crimsons of the trees, and she loved to look into the clear water of Fairyland Lake and see the colors from the trees reflected in the water, and even the white, fluffy clouds above.

"We will have the party in the afternoon," she said. "And everyone, I hope, will come."

They all came. There were the Brownies, headed by Billie Brownie and Dannie Brownie.

There were the Elves, headed by Elsie Elf.

There were the members of the Oaf family, with Ollie Oaf leading the way.

There were the members of the Bogey family, with Bill Bogey in the lead.

There were members of the Gnome family, with Peter Gnome leading the way.

There were Witty Witch and Mr. Giant, and they were very much dressed up for the occasion.

Witty Witch wore a crimson shawl over a bright yellow costume, and really the trees seemed to bow to her as she went along, as if they wanted to thank her for the compliment.

Mr. Giant was dressed in a handsome brown suit, with red buttons. And as his suit was so enormous there seemed to be many red buttons upon it.

Of course, all the members of the Fairy family were receiving the guests with the Queen of the Fairies.

Princess Fairy Twilight-Bell was on hand, and so was the Pond Fairy, and so were Princess Fairy Joy and Fairy Wondrous Secrets and all the others.

They were dressed in costumes which looked like the colors of the different maple trees and their costumes were shaped like maple leaves.

The Elves were dressed in bright red costumes and the members of the Bogey family wore scarlet.

The members of the Oaf family wore brown costumes and the Brownies wore oak-brown suits, which were very handsome.

Yes, not only was the ball being given in honor of the beautiful autumn coloring and foliage, but the guests all dressed themselves so that they looked very fittingly and appropriately dressed for such a party.

And then they danced.

Sometimes they edged near the land where the people lived and sometimes the people almost caught sight of them, but they looked so much like the beautiful autumn coloring that the people said:

"Sometimes we see bits of coloring in the woods and then we don't seem to know quite where we have seen it."

Really, it was the Fairyland ball of which they caught glimpses.

After they had danced they played games and ran races and jumped and had a beautiful game pushing a big ball which was filled with air.

After the games were over they had a supper party and Fairy Yvonne's orchestra furnished music which played while they ate.

Some of them sang, too, and though the words and the music of their songs did not reach the ears of the people there were little sounds which were carried to the ears of people.

And it seemed to them as though the day happened to be unusually beautiful and wonderful and as though there must be music somewhere—perhaps the wind rustling through the bright colored leaves.

But it really was the music of Fairyland.

And, oh, such a beautiful party as it was. The Sun shone down upon it and he said he had never seen so brilliant a ball—no, never before, not even in Fairyland.

And the Fairy Queen was delighted. For the Sun had looked down on many a party, and certainly it was a big compliment, coming from him, as it did.

GAS BUGGIES—Such is Gratitude

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Conviction brings a silent, indefinable beauty into faces made of the commonest human clay; the devout worshiper at any shrine reflects something of its golden glow, even as the glory of a noble love shines like a sort of light from a woman's face.—Balsac.

ORDINARY GOOD THINGS

Just the common ordinary foods when served in a tasty manner are as much enjoyed as more elaborate and expensive dishes with which we are unfamiliar.

French Fried Potatoes.—Wash, pare and cut into eighths, lengthwise, enough potatoes to serve the family. Soak them one hour in cold water, drain and parboil in salted water two minutes, again drain, plunge into cold water and dry between towels, fry in deep fat until delicately browned—a few at a time—and drain on paper to absorb the fat. Heat the fat to a higher temperature, return all the potatoes to the fat, using a frying basket and fry until crisp and brown, keeping the basket in motion. Again drain and sprinkle with salt.

Sponge Pudding.—Stir one-third of a cupful of flour into one cupful of milk, until smooth. Set into boiling water and cook. Cool, then add one-half tablespoonful of butter, the yolks of three eggs, well-beaten, and one-quarter of a cupful of sugar. Cut and fold in the stiffly-beaten whites and flavor to taste. Set in a pan of hot water and bake twenty minutes. Serve with powdered sugar, butter and whipped cream. Add a tablespoonful of butter and add as much sugar as it will take well-creamed; now add a half-cupful of whipped cream and a few drops of flavoring.

Maryland Fried Tomatoes.—For those who enjoy fried tomatoes, they may have them in the winter, when such foods are luxuries. Select large, firm tomatoes and fry them just as if they were to be served at once. Pack them in stone jars while still hot and pour over them a covering of sweet, hot lard. When the lard has cooled, cover with a clean cloth and a heavy paper tied over the jar. Set in a cool place. When ready to use carefully remove the lard and cook until heated. They are every bit as good as fresh fried tomatoes. It is best to put them into containers small enough so that when opened they may be used soon.

Van Etten, and Mr. Giberson, Sr., motored here on Friday and spent the week-end at the Van Etten home. They returned to their homes Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Giberson, Jr., who has been spending a two weeks' vacation with her parents.

Miss Elsa Mertine was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. DePuy recently.

Harold Van Etten has a new Ford car.

The guests at the Van Etten home enjoyed a trip to the Ashokan dam, returning by way of Kingston Saturday, and with the Van Etten family spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. DePuy.

Several out of town parties have been buying and picking apples from some of the residents here.

George Hartelius was honored with a birthday party on Wednesday evening, October 22, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William DePuy. An appetizing supper was served early in the evening, which left nothing lacking in the line of good eats, from the more substantial to the dainty cakes, birthday one included. Ice cream, home made candy, etc. Piano and violin music and singing were also enjoyed during the evening.

A party of ladies from Ellenville way, were in this locality recently, in search of antique furniture.

Mrs. G. E. Giberson of New Jersey while visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Smith, and family at Pataunkunk, attended the movies and play at Ellenville with Mr. and Mrs. Smith and family and with them called on their sister-in-law, at Bloomington.

BLUE RIBBON WINNERS ON THIS SIDE OF THE TANDARK

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The status of the horse as a method of convenience, is way below par, but as a magnet for the smart set, he still remains king. Even exhibitions for the display of the most luxurious closed cars do not bring out the fashionables, and would-be fashionables, that a horse show is sure to draw.

Having opportunity to see what New York women were sponsoring for horse show wear, makes one rather certain that what was worn in Squadron A will have as much style significance as what was worn when polo drew much the same throng to Meadowbrook.

The third coat is of black suede cloth; its choker collar of baby lamb and the closing are worth more than a passing glance, since the front panel widens from the apex of one button passing through a regulation double-breasted line, to a greater width, accented by the buttons. The long tight sleeves—a surprise coatmakers are fond of springing—gives one an excuse for carrying one of the new muffs—a clever arrangement of velvet and two animal skins, usually. A fur motif on the hat proves that we learned a thing or two about the effectiveness of fur.

Danger May Lurk In Stomach Ache

Ache May Indicate Appendicitis or Other Serious Condition Which Would Be Aggravated by Remedies Used for Ordinary Indigestion.

That children's "stomach aches" are not always due to simple indigestion and that it is better not to give castor oil until the cause is known, was brought out in a radio health talk prepared by Dr. Henry L. K. Shaw, consultant on child hygiene to the New York state department of health, was broadcast from Station WYG, Schenectady, on Friday evening.

Dr. Shaw began his talk by quoting an expression common to children: "Mother, I have a stomach ache." "This is a complaint not at all uncommon in childhood," he said, "a source of no little alarm to the parents and of considerable discomfort to the child."

He continued: "Pain in the abdomen caused by different factors and conditions. Indigestion and indiscretions in diet are responsible for most of the abdominal pain in children but not of all by any means. It should be borne in mind that there are other conditions such as appendicitis, telescoping of the intestines and peritonitis in which the principal symptom is stomach ache. To treat such conditions as cases of indigestion would aggravate the symptoms and might even bring about a fatal result. A celebrated English children's specialist recently stated: 'I know no symptom which may be more obscure in its causation than colicky abdominal pain in childhood.'"

"The object of this talk is to call the attention of mothers to the fact that young children can and do have appendicitis. We do not mean to alarm you unnecessarily or to have you consider every stomach ache an attack of appendicitis. Fortunately for all concerned it is not a common occurrence. In a compiled list of 16,000 cases of appendicitis, two and one-half per cent were in children under five years of age, 3.3 per cent in children from 5 to 10 years, while 16.3 per cent of cases occurred between the ages of 10 and 15."

"A physician recently found accounts in the medical journals of over 80 cases of appendicitis in infants under two years of age, and the writer of this talk had a case of ruptured appendix in a six weeks old infant. A noted New York surgeon says that after the first year of life appendicitis is the most frequent of all the acute emergencies of abdominal disease."

"A very young child cannot localize his stomach ache. In older persons it is a relatively simple matter to find the point of tenderness directly over the appendix. The child refers all pain, wherever situated, not to one spot in the abdomen, but to its entire surface and contents. One of my little patients not very long ago complained bitterly of a stomach ache but a careful examination revealed an abscess in one of the ears about which the child had made no complaint. When the abscess was relieved the stomach ache also disappeared. Even older children who have pain in the chest as a result of pneumonia or pleurisy refer it to the abdomen and may point to the right side in the region of the appendix. That this is not infrequent is shown by the fact that out of 145 cases of pneumonia in children admitted to the Boston City Hospital, 25 were sent with a diagnosis of appendicitis.

A child suffering from severe abdominal pain is restless and cries constantly. He cannot sleep and will not let anyone else do so. He will cry whenever touched and will resist every effort of the physician to feel and examine the abdomen. Fortunately the physician has other means of reaching a diagnosis which are too technical to be discussed at this time.

"In these cases nothing can do more harm than the administration of a large dose of castor oil or any other cathartic. Nature safeguards against this by making castor oil difficult to retain. Besides, vomiting is a very frequent symptom in appendicitis."

"The lesson or warning which cannot be emphasized too strongly is never to give a cathartic to a child with severe stomach ache unless the possibility of appendicitis has been excluded. In a book for mothers written in a popular style the advice is given to relieve stomach ache in children by a large dose of castor oil, by massage of the abdomen and by having the child pull in and push out the abdominal wall by muscular effort. Such advice is well meant and perhaps helpful in cases of simple indigestion, but would aggravate appendicitis, peritonitis or stoppage of the bowels if any of these conditions were present."

"A mother wants to relieve the suffering from a stomach ache and to accomplish this there is nothing safer or better than to apply moist hot compresses over the abdomen and to give a soap suds enema."

"Pain in the abdomen or stomach ache may be a symptom of a serious disease especially if accompanied with vomiting. When simple home remedies do not relieve the pain a physician should be called at once for delay may be very dangerous."

Chivalry

It was this which, without confounding ranks, had produced a noble equality, and landed it down through all the gradations of social life. It was this opinion which mitigated kings into companions, and raised private men to the fellows with kings. Without force, or opposition, it subdued the fiercest of pride and power; it obliged sovereigns to submit to the soft collar of social esteem, compelled stern authority to submit to elegance, and gave a dominating tranquillity of laws to be subdued by manners.—Edmund Burke.

Paris, Oct. 27.—Tentative arrangements were made here today for France to obtain a loan of from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 in the United States.

J. P. Morgan held a conference with Finance Minister Clementel when they agreed in principle that France should obtain the loan in New York. The details are not yet settled.

MASONIC CLUB TO PRESENT ANOTHER LYCEUM COURSE.

The Masonic Club has arranged with the Alber-Wickes Platform Service of Boston to present another lyceum course of entertainments under its auspices at the club rooms this fall and winter. The club feels that with the memory of the high class entertainments furnished by the same bureau last fall and winter in mind, the public will be glad to learn that another course is to be presented.

The attractions for the coming season are: Musical Arts Duo, October 29; Noah Beilharz, costume character impersonations, November 13; Days & Company, magicians, December 10; Cheney Concert Company, January 8; and Wilma Vance Trio, musicians and impersonators, January 24.

The first attraction, the Musical Arts Duo, to be presented Wednesday evening, October 29, is a charming musical entertainment, which will be delightful from the double standpoint of artistic worth and musical variety. Miss Eva May Pike has a soprano voice of great range and flexibility. Miss Pike is also an accomplished pianist and saxophonist. Miss Frances Foskette, the other member of the duo, is a dramatic soprano, whose concert recitals experience promises a treat. The program will be in three periods, including choice numbers from the masters, Spanish gypsy interpretations in costume, closing the evening's program with episodes of yesterday in songs of long ago, with appropriate and exquisite costume effect.

At the close of the entertainment music for dancing will be furnished until 12 o'clock, so that all those who attend may enjoy themselves in a social way.

Tickets can be obtained of club members or at the club rooms.

Oscillation and What Term Means

Way of Generating Alternating Current by Means of Vacuum Tube.

Oscillation is a term that has always puzzled radio fans. The majority mix oscillation with regeneration, although there is a difference between them. It is possible to have regeneration with oscillation, and in fact regeneration will aid oscillation. However, oscillation will not cause regeneration.

Oscillation is really a free alternating current or forced alternating current. Now, let us see how this is produced. Let us refer to the simple oscillatory circuit shown in Figure 2. It consists of a battery, B, an inductance, L, and a condenser, C. The action in the circuit is as follows: The battery, B, charges the condenser, C, and in turn the condenser discharges through the inductance, and this action keeps going on as often as the battery is connected to the circuit.

An analogy of this is shown in Figure 1. The spring, S, holds the weight, W. This represents the normal condition of the circuit in Figure 2. Now, if we were to pull the weight to the position shown at X it would be equivalent to charging the condenser. Releasing the weight from position X, it will return to its original position W, and this condition is the same as the condenser discharging through the circuit in Figure 2. This circuit is said to have a natural period of oscillation.

A three-electrode vacuum tube, if connected to a circuit having a natural period of oscillation, will, if certain conditions are satisfied, generate alternating current of the frequency fixed by the inductance and capacity of the circuit to which it is connected. If the input circuit of the detecting tube is continually excited by a locally generated frequency of 49,000 cycles, which frequency can correspond to the free oscillations generated in the circuit, then, when the signal comes in, the input circuit is excited by both 49,000 cycles and 50,000 cycles, the latter being the frequency of the incoming signal and the result being a frequency of 1,000 cycles. This frequency will give a 1,000-cycle beat note in the telephone. When the frequency, which in the example is 49,000 cycles, is generated by the detector tube it is called the autodyne method of reception.

Now, before we leave this subject let us consider regeneration. What is regeneration and how does it differ from oscillation? As we said before, oscillation is the method of generating an alternating current by means of a vacuum tube. Regeneration is a method bringing the output of a tube back to the input of the tube so that the signals will be sent through the tube again in order to increase the signal energy.

SHORT CIRCUITS

In any type of regenerative set where proper regeneration does not seem to take place it is frequently advisable to reverse the wires which run to the tickler coil. This is particularly true of honeycomb coil sets and other sets of a similar nature.

In a radio frequency set it is highly important that the grid and plate wires be kept separate.

If a tickler feed back receiver regenerates too freely the capacity of the phone condenser should be reduced.

In some instances a three-circuit regenerative set can be improved by reversing the terminals of the plate variable.

A 22½-volt "B" battery should be considered dead after its voltage drops below 17 volts.

The outside wire terminal of the secondary of an amplifying transformer should always be connected to the grid of the tube.

Park Bond Issue Gets Approval

Judge Clearwater Calls Attention to Proposition No. 1, to be Voted on at Election—Approved by Both Political Platforms—Importance to Public.

The requested approval at the coming election of the park bond issue endorsed by both political parties is of great importance, and The Freeman is glad to present the views of Judge Clearwater, who is president of one of the greatest of the park commissions—that of Niagara Falls—and who is also a member of the council of parks, upon the subject.

The amendment will appear on the ballot as Proposition No. 1 and authorizes a bond issue of fifteen million dollars to buy lands for the public use.

Judge Clearwater said: "It is one of the few important plans for the betterment of conditions which meets the approval of both the Republicans and Democrats of the state, and of both the Republican and Democratic state conventions. It should have the approval and vote of every citizen. The program was instituted several years ago as a part of the conservation work which had been undertaken by this state to preserve its most beautiful and picturesque sections for the use of the people, free of charge, and the event has demonstrated the wisdom of the plan, in that as rapidly as the parks have been opened, the people have flocked to them as soon as the snow is off the ground in the spring, and continue to do so all summer, autumn and early winter. Many visitors take their tents and remain for a fortnight, a month or the entire season."

"For illustration, at the state reservation at Niagara, of the commission having charge of which for several years I have been president, between the first day of July, 1923, and the last day of June, 1924, 1,956,041 people crossed the bridge leading from the mainland at Niagara Falls to Goat Island, and substantially 300,000 others viewed the great cataract from salient points on the mainland. Fifty per cent of these came by automobile; many of the visitors came early in the morning and on moonlight nights, remaining until midnight to see the luna rainbow, which at the time of the full moon when the wind blows from the west is a double rainbow. The solar rainbow is visible every sunshiny morning. These visitors come from all over the world, and so to a lesser extent they come to the Pallsades, the Allegheny, Letchworth, Finger Lakes, Westchester, Long Island, Taconic, Saratoga, Lake George, John Boyd Thatcher and the smaller parks."

"All of these parks are under the control and management of groups of distinguished citizens, who serve entirely without compensation, and simply for the sake of the public service they can render. Of the dozens of commissioners every one devotes a large amount of his time and a considerable sum of money from his personal funds to the discharge of the duties he accepts. Thus it is that all the parks are conducted with the closest economy, regardless of any end but that of the public benefit."

"It would be difficult in any state or in any country to secure so many men of the first rank to discharge the self-imposed duties performed by these commissioners without pay. In addition the lands which it is sought to acquire for public parks rapidly are increasing in value, and if not at once bought by the state, doubtless will be purchased by speculators, fenced in and considerable fees charged for the use of them because the American people are determined to get out of doors. Thus it is that I commend to every man and woman of whatever party, this bond issue, and unhesitatingly say that in voting upon it, they will assist one of the most beneficent and public spirited movements devised by any group of men in the history of the country."

When Congress Picks President

If Presidential Candidate Fails to Receive Majority in Electoral College, Election Goes to Congress—What Happens There—Famous Contests.

An explanation of what happens if a presidential candidate fails to receive a majority of votes in the Electoral College, with a brief summary of some famous political contests before political parties were organized as they are now, is contained in the following, from a series of articles on timely political topics prepared for The Literary Digest. It will answer many questions which are heard nowadays.

The article is as follows:

When the House Chooses a President.

If no candidate for President receives a majority of the electoral votes, the Constitution provides that from the three highest on the list of those voted for, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately the President by ballot. But "in choosing the President the votes shall be taken by states, the representatives from each state having one vote." A quorum for this purpose "shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice." In the case of the Vice-President, if a majority of the Electoral College do not unite on a candidate, "then from the two highest on the list the Senate shall choose the Vice-President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, a majority of the whole number being necessary to a choice." If no President is elected by either the Electoral College or the House before the expiration of the current Presidential term on the 14th of March following, and if a Vice-President should be elected by that time, as J. A. Woodburn notes in "The American Republic and Its Government," the Constitution provides that the Vice-President shall become President until an election of a President is accomplished. If neither President nor Vice-President be elected by March 4, he tells us, the Constitution does not indicate who shall act as President, and nobody is vested with power to determine the question. There would be an interregnum, unless the existing President and Vice-President should resign before the close of their term, in which case, by the provisions of the Presidential Succession Bill, the Secretary of State would act as President until an election be made. The Constitution should provide, he adds, that "an existing President should hold office until his successor be elected."

What Happened in 1800.

A Presidential election has been referred to the vote of the House of Representatives on two occasions—in 1800, when Jefferson was first elected, and in 1824, when John Quincy Adams was elected. The contest in 1800 between Jefferson and Burr resulted in the adoption of the Twelfth Amendment to the Constitution. Before the adoption of this amendment the Electors voted for two candidates for President. The candidate receiving the most votes was made President and the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes was made Vice-President. This election of 1800 is notable also for the fact that the members of the Electoral College were voted by parties for the first time. Jefferson and Burr, writes R. H. Fuller in "Government by the People," each received seventy-three votes, the full strength of the Democratic-Republicans. Adams received sixty-five votes, this authority relates, and Pinckney sixty-four, one Federalist Elector voting for John Jay so that Adams might have one more vote for Pinckney and thus be entitled to the Presidency if the Federalists should win. The Democratic-Republicans had not taken this precaution, we are told, and therefore there was a tie vote between the two candidates, Jefferson and Burr, for the Presidency. Although they had agreed to elect Burr to the Vice-Presidency because of this tie, the election was thrown into the House of Representatives, where, after thirty-six ballots, ten states voted for Jefferson and ten for Burr.

What Happened in 1824.

In the Presidential campaign of 1824, Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay and William H. Crawford were candidates for President. John C. Calhoun was chosen Vice-President by the Electoral College, but none of the Presidential candidates had a majority of the electors, the vote being: Jackson, ninety-nine; Adams, eighty-four; Crawford, forty-one, and Clay, thirty-seven. The election of the President, R. H. Fuller notes, was therefore again thrown into the House of Representatives and Adams was elected by a majority of the states, receiving thirteen votes to seven for Jackson and four for Crawford. Clay had been dropped because he was not among the first three in the Electoral College.

According to Professor Woodburn, in the volume above mentioned, it was charged that a corrupt coalition had been made between Adams and Clay. Clay, being fourth on the list of candidates, could not be voted for, and it was said that his influence resulted in the election of Adams. Professor Woodburn adds that Clay was afterwards made Secretary of State by Adams, which gave color to the charge, though "there was not a bargain, corrupt or otherwise, between the two men." But Jackson and his friends always felt that the people had been deprived of their choice, and this election is said to have increased the Democratic movement for a direct popular choice of the electors and for a more popular system of party nominations. By the time of Jackson's second election, in 1828, the representative party convention system was coming into use.

What Happened in 1876.

In 1876, Professor Woodburn goes on to relate, there was a still more serious dispute over the Presidential election—"a dispute which clearly illustrated an almost fatal weakness in the system of electing a President by the Electoral College." In that election there were 369 electoral votes, 185 being necessary for a choice. The Democratic candidate,

Country's Record Year for Big Disasters; Red Cross Gives Relief in Many States

RED CROSS WORKERS AND NURSE RESCUING A TORNADO VICTIM FROM RUINS OF HIS HOME.

WHEN the angry elements of nature crash man's works about him, wherever tornado, cyclone, flood, fire, explosion inflict death, injury and misery, the news dispatches almost invariably convey the assurance that Red Cross nurses and workers are on duty immediately. In the 12 months ended June 30 last the American Red Cross administered relief in 192 disasters, a new annual record in the United States.

This was a monthly average of 16 disasters. The year's total deaths amounted to 735, nearly 2,000 persons were injured, and almost 44,000 were left homeless. Every week of the year the disaster loss was a little under a million dollars, the total losses for the year being estimated at more than $45,000,000.

The annual report of the American Red Cross states that disasters wrecked 2,450 buildings and damaged 5,230, in the territory embraced from Maine to California and Minnesota to Texas. The Red Cross in all areas housed 5,700 persons, 2,900 alone after the recent tornado in Northern Ohio, and the organization furnished food to 26,300.

The year's disasters included 13 great fires, 16 floods, six mine explosions, a powder mill explosion and an explosion in a starch factory, three cloudbursts, seven cyclones, 14 tornadoes, and five disasters due to hail or wind storms. All the tornadoes occurred during the latter part of April, in May and June. The Red Cross disbursed in relief work $27,603.87 of National and Chapter funds.

The industry of the Red Cross doesn't end when the immediate needs of the injured and homeless are satisfied, but its workers are busy over long periods in devastated districts engaged in rehabilitating the victims. In 33 of the larger disasters of the year the trained workers from the National organization continued in service for many months.

The whole nation looks to the Red Cross when calamity strikes, and the organization in the last year increased its equipment so as to be certain that it will retain this national confidence. Under the direction of executives at Washington a mobile disaster unit has been organized with a reserve of experienced disaster workers standing ready for any call to duty anywhere. This unit has at its service the airplanes of the Army, Navy and Post Office Department and can place its nurses and administrators in the midst of a wreck-stricken section in the shortest possible time.

The six mine explosions were especially severe in taking toll of life, 353 men being killed. This type of disaster always means long-time family tragedies due to the loss of wage earners and involves the setting up of trust funds through Red Cross activity for the care and education of minor children and provision for widowed mothers.

Tornadoes and floods cause the most widespread desolation. No one can escape their path. The battered belongings of rich and poor are piled in a confused tangle. After the first shock or confusion begins to assert itself, invariably close to the center of the concerted endeavor is found the local Red Cross Chapter whose volunteer workers drop everything to give relief, and this work is intelligently done because these workers have been schooled in effective methods of handling such problems.

The universal presence of the Red Cross in time of great distress is not surprising when it is known that there are more Red Cross Chapters than there are counties in the United States; that the six divisions of the national organization have headquarters at Boston, Chicago, Atlanta, Washington, St. Louis and San Francisco. The Division has an organization similar to that of National Headquarters at Washington, and the Division managers comprise an executive staff in the field competent to handle every situation in which the industry and humanitarian endeavors of the American Red Cross are enlisted.

Those who, have gone to the scenes of devastation have been impressed and inspired by the way the Red Cross people drop in line to give relief in time of dire need. This work never rests and it is a foremost activity of the Red Cross which illustrated why in peace time the American Red Cross needs great strength in interested members back of it. It is one of the foremost reasons why everybody is urged to join or renew membership in the Red Cross this year during the enrollment period opening Armistice Day, November 11, and ending Thanksgiving Day, November 27. As the attest of Red Cross operations depends upon the strength of individual members, the reason for joining has a direct appeal to all persons—for the Red Cross is the people's "league of mercy."

Mr. Tilden, carried, without dispute, 184 votes, lacking only one of enough to elect the Republican candidate. Mr. Hayes, had 163 votes. We are told further that in four states—Oregon, Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana, with twenty-two electoral votes—there were disputed returns. If in any of these states the Democratic Electors were found to have been chosen, Mr. Tilden would have a majority in the College and would be elected; while the Republicans in order to elect their candidate must have all of the twenty-two. Of course the Republicans, as loyal party men, laid claim to all these doubtful states, remarks Professor

Woodburn, and the Democrats did the same, though the Democrats would have been satisfied with only one. In the disputed states the two sets of electors met, voted, and sent up the certified returns to Washington. In Congress the Republicans had a majority in the Senate, while the Democrats had a majority in the House. On this point R. H. Fuller, as cited above, has the following to say:

Neither party was able to have its return from the disputed states declared valid. It was finally decided to refer the controversy to a "Returning Board" or Electoral Commission, consisting of five Senators, five Representatives, and five Judges of the United States Supreme Court. This commission decided that Hayes had carried Florida by a plurality of 926 and Louisiana by a plurality of 1,627.

The Supreme Court of Florida had given Tilden a plurality of 94 in that state, and the face of the return in Louisiana, it was asserted, gave Tilden 5,303 plurality. The electoral votes of these two states, however, were counted for Hayes, giving him 153 electoral votes and Tilden 121. The count was not completed until two days before March 4, 1877, when the President was to be inaugurated.

In Memory of Peter J. Overt.
Husband of Mary J. Overt, who departed this life October 25, 1910.

Sleep on in thy beauty,
Thou sweet angel child,
By sorrow unlighted,
By sin undefiled,
Like the dove of the ark
Thou hast flown to thy rest,
From the wild sea of strife,
To the home of the blest.

SON, GEO. A. OVERT AND FAMILY of this city.

In Memoriam.
BEAIRD—Harry R., died October 26, 1918.

Six brief years have flown
Since he whose presence cheered us
on life's way,
Summoned by the mandate of his God.

Left us sad and lone, yet, not alone,
For he who called him has been our constant stay,
Whispering, "I am the truth, the life, the way."

Thus we are strengthened to await the gladsome day
When we may greet him on a brighter shore,
Safely sheltered in our Father's house.

These to go out no more.

New York, Oct. 27.—Stock prices moved nervously and irregularly through a narrow range in today's market. The oils were deserted by the professionals for the time being, as efforts were made to convert paper profits into cash; but selling was well absorbed and at the end of the period the oils were apparently ready for another climb.

The outside public was apathetic and the market was dominated by the professionals, who were more inclined to sell than buy.

The upward movement in prices of railroad stocks came to an abrupt halt as stocks which had been moving forward briskly in the last ten days were sold on profit taking operations. Frisco Common sold below 38 for a loss of about 2 points below last week's high.

Industrial leaders were generally irregular as American Can, General Electric, Baldwin and some of the specialists were made the target for bearish sales. American Can lost about 3 points. General Electric 3 and Baldwin one. Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company sold down to a new low at 43 on reports that the third quarter's earnings were disappointing.

U. S. Steel led the steel stocks in to a moderate rally in the fourth hour. Bethlehem Steel found good support around 40. Coppers were in good form but not strong enough to move against the downward trend of the market. American Smelters and Cerro de Pasco were the most active stocks in this group.

General Cleanup

Washington, Oct. 27.—Six district attorneys have resigned and four more have been asked to resign in the last three months. Attorney General Stone revealed today in declaring that there has been a "general cleanup" in the law enforcement branch of the government since last July.

The attorney-general would not disclose the identity of the district attorneys nor state the district affected, but said that "great progress" had been made in disposing of prohibition cases since Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general, wrote her famous letter to the Law Enforcement League of Philadelphia blaming incompetent district attorneys for lax prohibition enforcement.

Suicide Follows
Father's Reproof

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Wallington, N. J., Oct. 27.—Valentine Suder, 14, shot and killed herself today, because her father scolded her for remaining outside her home late last night.

"I hope he's found dead under a fence some day like a dog," said a note she left, alluding to the father, at a time.

Suder said she reproved the girl for her late hours and then whipped her. Soon after her father left his room, Valentine stole into it, took his revolver and shot herself in the heart. Her mother, hurrying upstairs from the kitchen, found the girl dead on the floor, the note nearby.

The letter, according to Dr. W. E. Ogden, Bergen county physician, complained that Suder had not treated the girl as a father should treat his daughter and that marks on her body would prove that assertion.

Telephone Rates
May Be Higher

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Following admission at a rate hearing here today by counsel of the New York Telephone Company and the company has appraised its upstate properties and is prepared to make proof of greater values, Attorney General Carl Sherman declared that upstate cities and rural districts will be loaded with an increase of more than thirty per cent in telephone rates if the company succeeds in proving a higher valuation of its properties outside New York city.

The company's agents, according to the attorney general, are appraising the upstate properties with a view to obtaining a production valuation on which it would base a claim for higher rates.

"I anticipated that such would be the case," Sherman said, "and we are prepared for a counter attack."

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mary E. Watson died at the home of George Davis at Kerhonkson, Saturday, October 25, after 86 years. She was an aunt of the late James Lounsbury, former county treasurer. The funeral was held from the Lounsbury home this afternoon. Interment in Pine Bush Cemetery, Kerhonkson.

Ell Booth, for a long time an employee of the West Shore railroad, died on Friday in St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. John Thomas of Clintondale and Mrs. Ralph Ferguson of Newburgh, and four brothers, Abalom J. of Milton, George of Walden, Frank of New Hurely and Edward of Cronometers Valley. The funeral service was held today in Perrott's Chapel, 157 Broadway, and the interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Newburgh.

Mary McCabe, widow of Bernard McCabe, formerly of Rosendale, died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Quick of High Falls, where she had been visiting for several months on account of ill health. Mrs. McCabe had been a resident of this city for a number of years, making her home with her daughter, Miss Rose G. McCabe, at No. 88 Pine street and had many friends in Kingston. Besides the two daughters mentioned, she is survived by one son, Michael McCabe, who resides in New Jersey. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Lew Dockstader, the well known old time minstrel and black face comedian, died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Warren Palmer of 270 Riverside Drive, New York city. He was in the sixty-ninth year of his age. He had been ill for the last two years, suffering from a bone tumor as the result of a fall in New Brunswick, N. J. Mr. Dockstader's real name was George Alfred Clapp and was born in Hartford, Conn. An annual visitor he had made a number of friends in Kingston and crowds always filled the Kingston Opera House when Dockstader appeared, either with the famous Primrose & West Minstrels and later with his own minstrel company.

The funeral of Gilead A. Smith was held at the home of his sister, Miss Emma Smith, at 70 Pearl street, at 11 o'clock this morning. There was a large attendance, many representative citizens of Kingston being present. The Rev. Wilbur B. Stowe, pastor of the Reformed Church of the Comforter, officiated and paid a most fitting tribute to the memory of deceased who had been for eighty-eight years a resident of Kingston and a most respected citizen. There were many floral offerings, among them a large blanket of chrysanthemums, a token from the officials in the offices at the court house, most of whom attended the funeral. The interment was in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Richard B. Jones, a highly respected citizen of this city, died at his residence, 14 President's Place, on Sunday evening. Mr. Jones was born in Kingston on October 26, 1845, 79 years ago, and died on his birthday. He is survived by his wife, Adelaide R., and one daughter, Anna R. of one son, Charles B. Jones, of Boston, Mass. He was a member and trustee of the Trinity M. E. Church for many years and was always active and earnest in its activities. While a boy he attended school at Wilbur and after taking a course at the Eastman Business College and graduating there he entered the employ of Hopper & Jones, grocers and dealers in supplies. In the year 1876, he accepted a position with the Rhinebeck and Connecticut Railroad and was paymaster for several years. After that he was employed by the late Thomas Cornell, later becoming auditor for the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company, and after 40 years' association with these two interests, he retired from active service in 1919. Mr. Jones was a man of pleasing personality, who made many friends during his life time. He was a man of high integrity and highly respected by all who knew him, and will be missed by all. Funeral from his late home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. Interment at the convenience of the family in the family plot in Montrose Cemetery.

Interbred Chickens
The origin of the Rhode Island Red chicken was similar to that of the Buff Orpington in England. It was a local race of poultry found extensively in Rhode Island, produced by the farmers themselves without any definite breeding and from uncertain stock. It is thought by some authorities that a considerable foundation of this local Rhode Island poultry was an old smooth-legged Cochins-China stock; but that ordinary Cochins were also largely bred is undoubted, and there is strong evidence that the Asiatic stock was considerably crossed and intermingled with Brown Leghorns.

Siberia Huge Gold Mine
Gold—enough to give $100,000 apiece to 60,000 people—lies unmined in Siberia, waiting to be taken out of the ground, says the New York Herald. Six billion dollars is the total value. This is the estimate of American mining engineers who have been looking the country over. And yet this gold is only a shadow of Siberia's greater natural resources—fabulous amounts of coal and oil, metals and farming soil that grows everything from tobacco and cotton to grapes and watermelons.

Preventing Floor Scratches
Those who have hardwood floors in their houses know the difficulty of keeping them free from furniture scratches. Pushes and slides overcome the difficulty for furniture that has straight legs, but these will not prevent rockers from scratching the floor. The best thing to do with the bottom of a rocker is to glue on a strip cut from an old felt hat. Don't let the joints come where the rocker rests when idle. The felt lasts a long time and can be renewed easily when worn.—Popular Science Monthly.

HOW TO GROW A DIAMOND

TRAVELLER one day heard a man make the assertion that he knew how to grow diamonds. A friend accused him of either being a real genius or an enemy of the truth, and insisted on knowing something of this discovery, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. So William told him. I learned this method from Safford & Scudder (My Jeweller) in Kingston. They formed a Diamond Growing Club, and the members started by selecting a small diamond and later and it exchanged for a larger stone, and in every transaction allowed full purchase price of the last diamond bought. I joined the Club and planted $25.00 in a small diamond. It was a small Diamond I know. The next month, cutting down on my smokes, auto-trucking a few miles, left me a little surplus, so when I again hit Kingston I had $20.00 to the good. So I looked up My Jeweller and traded the diamond for a $45.00 diamond. I did this over and over again, till I had a real twenty, blue-white and a Perfect Diamond, the kind My Jeweller sells.

Cordially yours,

Judge Schirick Out of Baseball

Judge Harry E. Schirick today stated that he was out of baseball and would not have charge of the Kingston Colonials next season. It is said that the Kingston Fair Ground officials have decided to place a team in the field and will engage a man to manage the team. This decision was reached at a recent meeting of the Fair Ground officials with Judge Schirick, who in fact, was through with baseball. The judge stated today that he intended to devote his entire time to his business affairs. Judge Schirick is the man who placed Kingston on the baseball map by organizing the Colonials several seasons ago. Under his leadership the team easily became the champions of the Hudson river valley, and have defeated teams from all sections of the state. His retirement from baseball will be greeted with regret by all of the fans of Kingston and vicinity.

Notre Dame a National Leader

Defeat of Princeton Places Rockne's Squad in Line With Illinois—Coast Conference Features California—East Situation Not Clear.
(By Davis J. Walsh.)
By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 27.—This is Blue Monday along the collegiate wash line.

This decision was reached at a recent meeting of the Fair Ground officials with Judge Schirick, who in fact, was through with baseball. The judge stated today that he intended to devote his entire time to his business affairs. Judge Schirick is the man who placed Kingston on the baseball map by organizing the Colonials several seasons ago. Under his leadership the team easily became the champions of the Hudson river valley, and have defeated teams from all sections of the state. His retirement from baseball will be greeted with regret by all of the fans of Kingston and vicinity.

Some few of the latter are Harvard, Minnesota, Washington and Jefferson, Princeton, Centre College, Wisconsin and Williams. Hitherto clean, they tailed to come out of the wash this week as clearly specimens, Harvard losing to Dartmouth, Minnesota to Iowa, W. and J. to Lafayette, Princeton to Notre Dame, Centre to West Virginia, Williams to Columbia and Wisconsin to Michigan.

Snow white, however, are the neck bands and starched collars of Notre Dame, California, Illinois, Lafayette, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Stanford, Marquette and Washington, among others. They haven't the faintly greyish fringe of Dartmouth, Iowa, Lehigh, Ohio State, Yale and Rutgers, the records of which are slightly soiled by the.

The most significant of Saturday returns was the 12 to 0 decision of Notre Dame over Princeton. It definitely settled the status of the Irish as a national leader with Illinois, Lafayette and a comparative few others, and exposed Princeton's weakness for what it was. The Tigers, seemingly, had not attack and were badly handled. On the other hand, Notre Dame played even better football than it did against the Army a week before.

In the middle west, it would appear that the situation has greater clarity than in any other section. Notre Dame and Illinois, judged on their records, are the best teams in that direction with Ohio State, Iowa and Marquette still in contending positions.

The lines of demarcation are by no means as clearly drawn in the east. Here, Lafayette cemented an already plausible claim to championship consideration by defeating W. and J., which scored the only touchdown of the year to date against the winners. But Pennsylvania and Syracuse have yet to be beaten or tied and the probability is that Syracuse will skip through the rest of the schedule unscathed. Penn and Lafayette, however, will settle their little equation next Saturday.

Dartmouth, unbeaten and with a tie against Yale and a victory over Harvard on successive Saturdays, must also come in for serious consideration, to say nothing of Yale itself, Rutgers and Lehigh. The situation in the east is not quite as clear as a handful of jumpball in a coal hole.

The coast likewise has its complexities to say nothing of the south. The coast conference race at present features California, which on Saturday beat Washington State, Washington University which beat Idaho and Southern California which beat Nevada. You might bulls-eye this one by closing both eyes and shooting over the left shoulder.

Alabama continued its fine work in the south by staking Georgia Tech to its first defeat of the season. Georgia remained in the running by beating Vanderbilt but the rest of the returns fit northward, including the outcome of the Texas Florida affair, were so fragmentary as to leave the entire business pretty much in the air.

TRYON LEADS IN SCORING.

Colgate Star Leading Eastern Scorers With 67 Points.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 27.—Eddie Arvon, of Colgate, jumped into the lead for eastern scoring honors in intercollegiate football by scoring four touchdowns against Hobart on Saturday and bringing his total to 67 points. Benkert of Rutgers, ranks second with 64 points; Krueze of Pennsylvania, third with 57; McBride, Syracuse, fourth, with 53; and Oberlander, Dartmouth, fifth, with 43 points. Tryon and Benkert top the field in touchdowns with ten each.

In spite of his heavy scoring against Michigan, "Red" Grange of Illinois ranks second in the big ten conference scoring. First place goes to Baker of Northwestern, with 43 points, one more than Grange has scored. The latter, however, didn't play on Saturday. Baker's total was boosted by four field goals and seven goals from touchdown, Grange having none of either.

Stagg Is Dean of All Coaches

Alonzo A. Stagg, dubbed by football men and writers the "Old Fox" of football, is the dean of all football coaches in America, having been at it since 1891. But he is more than a football coach, possessing a professional title and having the official designation of director of athletics at the University of Chicago, where he has served since 1900. The photograph shows Stagg conferring with Capt. Franklin Gowdy.

Tommy Hitchcock Noted as a Great Polo Player

Tommy Hitchcock is a great polo player. That fact is firmly established on both sides of the Atlantic by this time. His father was a brilliant performer on the polo fields before him and helped make international history.

The next match between Great Britain and the United States may see two Hitchcocks in the lineup. Tommy and his younger brother, Frank. The father began training the boys for polo when they were hardly big enough to sit on the backs of their Shetland ponies. They were bred to the saddle. Frank has been developing fast and will probably be ready for the supreme test in three years.

With Tommy Hitchcock firmly established and his younger brother, Frank, Eric Pedler, Robert Strawbridge and a few others rising rapidly as international material, the United States finds little to worry about as far as polo is concerned.

Kelly Is Handy Man

George Kelly's value to the New York Nationals was demonstrated recently when he went into the outfield and played such fine ball that the fans wanted McGraw to keep him out there. Kelly voluntarily went to the outfield when so many Giant regulars and reserves were out of service. Bill Terry played first base with Kelly in the rescue role. As Terry is a hitter, and all fans know what Kelly can do, the change simply gave the Giants more run-getting strength.

Running Races in 1925

The historic North Randall race track, which for 16 years has been the home of Grand Circuit harness horse racing, will be the scene of running horse races, as well as trotters and pacers, next summer if present plans go through.

It is planned to conduct two or three running meets next summer. Win Kinnam, president, said, but they will not interfere with the Grand Circuit races. Under the plans the first will be held in June, for seven days.

Robins Sign Kid Hurler

The Brooklyn National league baseball club already is preparing to bolster up its pitching staff. The Robins announce the signing of eighteen-year-old L. T. Williams, who pitched this year for the Jackson (Miss.) club. He bats and throws left handed, is 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 160 pounds. During the last season he won 10 games and lost 7 for a percentage of .588. He issued 29 bases on balls and fanned 43 batters.

SERVICE GAME AT YANKEE STADIUM TODAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 27.—Color comparable to that which generally goes with an Army-Navy contest was expected this afternoon in the Navy Day football game at the Yankee Stadium between teams from the Quantico marine barracks and the naval scouting fleet. Proceeds will be turned over to the Belleau Wood memorial fund.

Several well known football players are included in the Navy team, among them Ensign McKee, a star of the naval academy team. Rooney, quarterback, also formerly was a Navy player. The men were picked from eighteen service elevens. Despite Navy's star make-up the Marines are favored to win.

New York, Oct. 27.—"Football will be played in aeroplanes," Percy Haughton, famous football coach was quoted today as saying in the current edition of Varsity, illustrated magazine at Columbia University, in answer to a question as to what football would be ten years from now. Haughton, who seldom gives interviews, concluded this one with the six words quoted above.
